The "other property" of the Association consisting chiefly of furniture in the library room is nearly as complete in all its appointments as when first purchased. Nine new shelves have recently been added to the book case for the reception of new books, and it scarcely probable that anything further will be needed in that direction during the coming year.

A complete catalogue of all the property belonging to the Association will be found annexed to this report.

An inspection of the Treasurer's accounts shows that he has received and disbursed the funds of the Association as shown in the following
